Aristocrat is delighted to be named a Great Place to Work-Certified® company for the first time in Australia and the U.S, while also achieving certification in India for an impressive 6th time.

"To be recognised as a Great Place to Work is an endorsement of our people-first culture," said Trevor Croker, Aristocrat Group CEO. "It encourages us to keep striving to be an even better home for great talent. While we're a global business, we remain a family at heart. We will keep doing all we can to help all employees unleash their full potential, and ensure they can do their best, and be their best, at Aristocrat."

Christie Roser, Chief People & Culture Officer said "I'm thrilled that Aristocrat's operations in Australia, the United States, and India have been endorsed as Great Places to Work. This confirms what Aristocrat employees consistently tell us, namely that they love being part of our growing team. We will continue to consult our people to find ways to further improve the employee experience across our global operations."
